

Better Facilities, Better Golf.

Bespoke Buildings For Golf Clubs And Practice Facilities.

Shelters, seating and refreshment facilities designed around your course

Starter huts

A professional welcome, a practical base for your starter.

Give your starter a dedicated, sheltered workspace for welcoming members and visitors, checking tee times and sharing course information. Positioned beside the first tee, a bespoke hut can support organised starts and help golfers begin their round informed and ready to play.

Layouts can include a staff workstation, equipment storage and course-information displays, with the size and finishes tailored to your club's setting and identity.

Local business sponsorship could help fund the facility, with discreet sponsor branding offering visibility to members and visitors.

On-course seating and shelters

Greater comfort throughout the round.

Give members and visitors convenient places to sit, wait and take a break throughout their round. Covered shelters offer protection from showers and shade on sunny days, helping clubs provide a more comfortable and welcoming course experience.

Seating can be positioned beside tees or at suitable resting points, with standalone benches and sheltered layouts tailored to the space available. Optional side panels and coordinated timber finishes help create a consistent appearance that complements your course.

Local business sponsorship could help fund the facility, with discreet sponsor branding offering visibility to members and visitors.

The Turn

Refreshments during the round. Service tailored to your club.

Give golfers convenient access to coffee, cold drinks and snacks while creating an opportunity for additional refreshment sales. The Turn is a bespoke halfway house designed for a position near the ninth hole or another suitable stopping point.

Layouts can accommodate a staffed counter, self-service vending and coffee equipment, or both. Clubs can provide personal service during busy periods and self-service at other times, depending on the equipment and operating setup.

Options can include sheltered seating, club branding, storage and secure shutters, with the layout and finishes tailored to your course and catering needs.

The Stop

Convenient refreshments. A compact, self-service solution

Give golfers easy access to drinks and snacks at suitable points around the course, while creating an opportunity for additional refreshment sales. The Stop is a compact alternative to The Turn, designed specifically for unstaffed operation.

The cabin can accommodate vending machines and self-service coffee equipment, with the layout tailored to your club's refreshment offering and available space. It can serve locations where a larger halfway house would be unnecessary.

Options can include club branding, secure shutters and storage for replenishment, with access arranged to support straightforward restocking and maintenance.

Golf academy buildings

Dedicated coaching space. More opportunities for your club.

Create a dedicated setting for lessons, club fitting and practice, helping your club develop its coaching offer and create opportunities for additional income. A bespoke academy building can bring these services together in a professional, welcoming facility for members and visitors.

Covered teaching bays and enclosed rooms can support individual lessons, junior programmes and beginner sessions. Optional simulator space can provide indoor practice and coaching when outdoor conditions are less favourable, giving golfers more reasons to visit beyond their usual round.

Layouts can be tailored to your coaching team, equipment and available space, with options for storage, club branding and a consultation area.

Driving range buildings

More comfortable practice. More reasons to visit.

Give members and visitors a sheltered place to practise, helping your club make better use of its practice facilities through more of the year. Covered hitting bays can encourage repeat visits and create opportunities for income from range use and coaching.

Buildings can serve standalone driving ranges or club practice areas, with the number of bays tailored to your available space and expected demand. Layouts can include dedicated teaching bays and provision for ball-tracking technology, supporting both focused practice and more sociable sessions.

Individual bays can offer local businesses sponsorship opportunities, with dedicated branding visible to members and visitors. Sponsorship could generate additional revenue to help fund the building or support ongoing running costs.

Clubhouse lean-to pavilions

More usable terrace space. More opportunities for hospitality.

Make better use of your clubhouse terrace with a bespoke timber lean-to pavilion. Covered seating gives members and visitors a sheltered place to enjoy food, drinks and post-round gatherings, helping your club use its outdoor dining space in a wider range of weather conditions.

A welcoming terrace can encourage golfers to stay after their round and create opportunities for additional food and drink sales. The space can also support society visits, presentation evenings and club functions, with seating arranged around your hospitality needs.

Timber finishes and roof styles can complement your clubhouse, with options for lighting and side panels for added shelter. Layouts can suit your seating needs while keeping clubhouse doors and service areas easily accessible.

Aluminium clubhouse pavilions

Contemporary outdoor dining. Shelter tailored to your terrace.

Make more use of your clubhouse terrace with an aluminium pavilion that complements a contemporary setting. Sheltered seating gives members and visitors a comfortable place to enjoy refreshments and gather after their round, creating opportunities for additional food and drink sales.

Options such as an adjustable louvred roof and side screens can help manage sunlight and shelter as conditions change. Integrated lighting can support evening dining and club functions, giving your hospitality team more flexibility in how it uses the terrace.

Finishes and layouts can complement your clubhouse and seating needs, with optional side glazing and convenient access between indoor facilities and outdoor tables.

Outdoor kitchen areas

Outdoor dining. More opportunities for club events.

Extend your club's catering offer with a bespoke outdoor kitchen for barbecues, pizza evenings and informal dining. Positioned beside the clubhouse or within a covered pavilion, it can create a welcoming setting that encourages members and visitors to stay and enjoy food after their round.

The space can support society days, summer gatherings and private functions, giving your team more ways to develop event menus and create opportunities for additional catering income. Cooking alongside the dining area can also make food a central part of the occasion.

Options can include barbecue and pizza equipment, preparation surfaces, refrigeration and storage. Layouts can suit your catering team and expected guest numbers, with coordinated shelter and finishes that complement the clubhouse.

Indoor simulator rooms

Year-round golf. More opportunities for bookings.

Give members and visitors somewhere to practise and play when outdoor conditions limit their golf. A bespoke indoor simulator room can support coaching and club fitting alongside virtual rounds, creating opportunities for paid bookings throughout the year.

The space can accommodate individual practice, group sessions and friendly competitions, giving golfers more reasons to visit beyond their usual round. Evening bookings and private hire can broaden your club's offer to players who need golf to fit around work and other commitments.

Rooms can be designed around your chosen simulator system, with suitable swing clearance, lighting and acoustic treatment. Options can include seating and equipment storage, with finishes tailored to your club.
