COURSE AND CLUBHOUSE

Better Facilities, Better Golf.

Bespoke Starter Huts

A professional welcome. A practical base.
A new opportunity for sponsorship.

A better start to every round

A dedicated point of contact beside the first tee.

A professional welcome

Give members, visitors and society groups a clear place to check in, meet the starter and prepare for their round.

Support organised starts

Provide a practical base for checking tee times, briefing groups and managing player spacing at the first tee.

Keep golfers informed

Display local rules, course conditions and daily notices, with scorecards and course information close at hand.

Shelter and a useful workspace

Give your starter protection from everyday weather, with a counter, storage and layout tailored to the role.

The compact pent

A small footprint. A clear welcome.

A simple, contemporary design for clubs that want a dedicated starter point where space beside the first tee is limited.

A front service counter keeps communication straightforward, while a side entrance separates staff access from the player-facing opening.

CLUB BENEFIT

A defined check-in point without a large building footprint.

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITY

A partner plaque beside the counter or beneath the club sign.

The information hub

Concept illustration. Final layout, finishes and specification agreed by quotation.

Keep the day's details in view.

A wider pent-roof design with a generous counter and prominent course-information and tee-time boards beneath the serving opening.

The layout brings the starter, daily notices and player information together, helping golfers find the details they need before stepping onto the tee.

CLUB BENEFIT

Space for group briefings, daily notices and a practical staff workstation.

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITY

A dedicated sponsor strip can sit alongside information panels while keeping notices easy to read.

The traditional apex

Concept illustration. Final layout, finishes and specification agreed by quotation.

Character beside the first tee.

A traditional pitched-roof design with exposed timber detailing and a sheltered entrance, suited to clubs looking for a distinctive welcome point.

The front counter provides a clear place for player enquiries and starter briefings. Timber finishes and club signage can be coordinated with the wider course setting.

CLUB BENEFIT

A welcoming focal point with a sheltered player-facing counter.

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITY

A carefully positioned plaque on the front or side can recognise a local business partner.

The pavilion design

Concept illustration. Final layout, finishes and specification agreed by quotation.

A more substantial first impression.

A hipped-roof concept combining timber with a stone-effect lower finish and counters facing two directions.

The generous frontage creates scope to organise player enquiries and society arrivals, with the internal layout planned around your starter and the space available.

CLUB BENEFIT

A prominent reception point with flexibility for busy golf days.

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITY

A principal partner package can combine tasteful building signage with club-approved digital recognition.

The octagonal hut

Concept illustration. Final layout, finishes and specification agreed by quotation.

A traditional outlook on the course.

A distinctive enclosed design with glazing on several sides, creating a sheltered base with views across the surrounding tee area.

The entrance, workstation and any opening service window can be planned around sight-lines, staff access and the way your starter welcomes players.

CLUB BENEFIT

An enclosed workspace with visibility across more than one direction.

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITY

A freestanding partner board nearby can provide visibility while preserving the building's character.

Turn a useful facility into a sponsorship opportunity

A visible place for local businesses to support your club.

A starter hut sits at a natural point of contact with golfers. Tasteful sponsor branding can create an additional source of income and help offset the cost of the facility, subject to securing a suitable partner.

01

Annual hut partner

Offer one business a defined period of recognition on a dedicated plaque or panel. Agree the position, size and renewal terms in advance.

02

Information-board partner

Include a clearly separated sponsor panel beside course information or tee times. Protect the visibility of essential player notices.

03

A wider club package

Combine hut signage with agreed website recognition, newsletter mentions or society-day exposure to build a more attractive offer.

MAKE THE OFFER SPECIFIC

Use your actual annual rounds, visitor profile and available promotional channels to set a fee. Agree artwork, signage costs, duration and renewal in writing. Sponsorship income is additional gross income; any production and servicing costs reduce the net benefit.

Designed around your course

From an initial idea to a facility that belongs at your first tee.

1 Tell us what you need

Share your preferred design, approximate space, photographs and indicative budget.

2 Shape the layout

Discuss staff access, counter height, information boards, finishes and sponsor positions.

3 Agree the project

Confirm the design, site requirements, services, installation scope and bespoke quotation.

Let's discuss your starter hut.

Send a photograph of the proposed location and we can create a complimentary placement image to help you picture the design on your course.
